1. CODE OF CONDUCT OF ETHICS – HUMAN VALUES AND ETHICS

Human values and professional ethics are very important in the entire society ; they encompass personal and corporate standards of behaviour expected by professionals. The word professionalism originally applied to vows of a religious order. Every human being has professional ethics because the term professionalism is also used for acknowledged professions to exercise specialist knowledge and skill. How to use of this professionalism governed when providing a service to the public can be considered a moral issue and is termed professional ethics. It is very useful and capable for applying their skills and making judgment in general public issues.

OBJECTIVES :

To identify his/her individual responsibilities and duties towards the society.

To understand Engineering ethics & responsibilities. Through the learning of IPR and human ethic topics students will be able to understand human rights / values and its implications in their life.

To improve moral awareness, moral reasoning and moral imagination for searching beyond the obvious and the alternative responses to issues and being receptive to creative solutions.

MORALS :

Morals are the welfare principles enunciated by the wise people, based on their experience and wisdom. Morality is concerned with principles and practices of morals such as :

What ought or ought not to be done in a given situation? What is right or wrong about the handling of a situation? What is good or bad about the people, policies and ideals involved ?

VALUES:

Humans have the unique ability to define their identity, choose their values and establish their beliefs. All three of these directly influence a person's behaviour. People have gone to great lengths to demonstrate the validity of their beliefs, including war and sacrificing their own life. Conversely, people are not motivated to support or validate the beliefs of another, when those beliefs are contrary to their own. People will act congruent with their personal values or what they deem to be important. A value is defined as a principle that promotes well-being or prevents harm.

RESPECT FOR OTHERS :

It is minimum culture for nurturing friendship and team work and for the synergy it promotes and sustains. The principles enunciated in this regard are:

Recognize and accept the existence of other persons as human beings, because they have a right to live, just as you have.

Respect others \ ideas (decisions), words and labour (actions). One need not accept or approve or award them, but shall listen to them first. One can correct or warn, if they commit mistakes. Appreciate colleagues and subordinates on their positive actions. Criticize constructively and encourage them. They are bound to improve their performance, by learning properly and by putting more efforts

Show goodwill on others. love others. Allow others to grow. Basically, the goodwill reflects on the originator and multiplies itself on every one. This will facilitate co-linearity, focus, coherence and strength to achieve the goals.

CARING:

Caring means opinion and feeling for others. It is a process which exhibits the interest in and support for the welfare of others with fairness, impartiality and justice in all activities, among the employees, in the context of professional ethics and values. It includes showing respect to the feelings of others and also respecting and preserving the interests of all others concerned.

Caring is reflected in activities such as friendship, membership and professional societies, community, country and in international councils.

HONESTY:

Honesty is nothing but truthfulness. Truthfulness is to face the responsibilities upon telling truth. One should keep one's word or promise. By admitting one's mistake (one needs courage to do that), it is easy to fix them.

Reliable judgement, maintenance of truth, defending the truth, and communicating the truth, only when it does some good to others, are some of the reflections of truthfulness. But trustworthiness is maintaining integrity and taking responsibility for personal performance.

People abide by law and live by mutual trust. They play the right way to win, according to the laws or rules (legally and morally). They build trust through reliability and authenticity. They admit their own mistakes and confront unethical actions in others and take tough and principled stand, even if unpopular. Honesty is mirrored in many ways. The common reflections are:

- Beliefs (intellectual honesty)
- Communication (writing and speech)
- Decisions (ideas, discretion)
- Actions (means, timing, place, and the goals)

COMMITMENT:

Commitment means alignment to goals and adherence to ethical principles during the activities. First of all, one must believe in one's action performed and the expected end results (confidence). It means one should have the conviction without doubt that one will succeed. Holding sustained interest and firmness, in whatever ethical means one follows, with the fervent attitude and hope that one will achieve the goals, is commitment. It is the driving force to realize success. This is a basic requirement for any profession. Only when the teacher (Guru) is committed to his job, the students will succeed in life and contribute some good to the society. The commitment of top management will naturally lead to committed employees, whatever may be their position or emoluments. This is bound to add wealth to oneself, his / her employer, society and the nation at large.

SELF-CONFIDENCE:

Certainty in one's own capabilities, dreams, values and goals, is self-confidence. These people are usually positive thinking, flexible and willing to change. They respect others so much as they respect themselves. Self-confidence is a positive attitude, wherein the individual has some positive and realistic view of himself, with respect to the situations in which one gets involved. The people with self-confidence exhibit courage to get into action and unshakable faith in their abilities, whatever may be their positions. They are not influenced by threats or challenges and are prepared to face them and the natural or unexpected consequences. The self-confidence in a person develops a sense of partnership, respect and accountability and this helps the organization to obtain maximum ideas, efforts, and guidelines from its employees. The person with self-confidence has the following characteristics:

- A self-assured standing.
- Willingness to do.
- To learn from others and adapt (flexibility).
- Frankness to speak the truth.
- Respecting others efforts and giving due credit.
- Strongly believes what he / she is doing.
